ER, AH, WELCOME TO DALY CITY

Citizens' Pleas Win Chief's Car And Price Cuts

Two money-saving attempts were abandoned Monday night by the Daly City City Council after irate citizens pointed out that the financial effects of Proposition 13 hadn't been as severe as anticipated.

A letter from the Daly City Mission Merchants Association prompted the council to consider restoring city vehicles to the police chief and fire chief.

The council had eliminated municipal vehicles for specific use by some city employees in July, shortly after the passage of Proposition 13.

Calling herself a "concerned citizen," Maria Mann of Daly City backed that idea, saying, "I feel since we are paying chiefs money to be on duty 24 hours, it is a good idea to provide cars."

She added, "If a chief's wife is out shopping and there is an emergency, what is he going to do — jog or call a cab?"

Councilman James Tucker said he had learned that the fire chief's and city manager's cars still are available, but that the police chief's car had been sold for $4,725 at a public auction.

Tucker argued in favor of restoring all three cars, saying it would be less expensive than the current arrangement of paying the three men 18 cents per mile in travel expenses.

Councilman Albert Teglia said he thought the chiefs were paid a high enough salary to be able to provide their own cars 24 hours a day.

In the end, Teglia and the other councilmen voted to approve Tucker's motion that the fire chief and city manager's cars be restored and that the city staff attempt to find a suitably-equipped car for the police chief from the city's pool of cars.

If no car can be found for the police chief, the council will discuss the matter again.

Approving the restoration of cars made it difficult for the council not to agree with citizens who asked that

JUHSD 'Bail-Out' Funds May Be in Trouble

By TERRY DAVENPORT

A letter received last week from the state Department of Education appears to jeopardize the Jefferson Union High School District's chances of receiving $7 million in bail-out funds from the state surplus.

The letter, written by Thomas M. Griffin, chief legal counsel for the state Department of Education, to San Mateo County Superintendent J. Russell Kent, lists 11 recent rulings by the state, including one that states, "Salary increases, not otherwise approvable, established on or after July 1, 1978, are prohibited even though negotiations for such increases may have commenced prior to that date.

The JUHSD trustees gave teachers 6-1/2 percent raises Sept. 30, retroactive to Feb. 1, as part of the contract that ended the teachers' 15-day strike. At the time, JUHSD Superintendent Floyd Gonella explained that the raise did not violate the rules governing the state surplus dole-out, as outlined in Senate Bill 2212, because negotiations between the district and the teachers had been in progress since the previous fall and the raise was retroactive.

Senate Bill 2212 states that districts that grant raises to public employees after July 1, 1978, may not receive portions of the $5 billion state surplus. The JUHSD stands to receive $7 million in surplus funds.

Griffin's letter, dated Oct. 19, also says, "The state superintendent of public instruction will ask each county superintendent of schools to certify by Dec. 1, 1978, that the school districts in the county are in compliance with those (SB 2212) code sections. If the county superintendent declines to so certify, the (state) superintendent will not certify the district to the controller, with the consequence that the district will not receive any funds from the state surplus."

Kent said Friday that he has not made a decision on whether to certify that the Jefferson Union High School District is in compliance with the state law.

"I'm going to follow the advice of counsel on this. My responsibility is to set forth whatever the factual situation is, not my desire as to what the consequences would or would not be," he remarked.

Kent met for several hours Friday morning with Gonella and Marcy Ballard, president of the union representing teachers in the district.

Gonella declined to interpret the meaning of Griffin's letter to the district.

"I think that it would be inappropriate and premature for me to give a definition of this letter, because we're still looking at it," he said.

He said he would inform trustees of the letter's contents as soon as possible.

Gonella said that the district and the teachers' union are working together. During the strike Mrs. Ballard had expressed fears that the district might fight the teachers if there were any challenge to the legality of the pay raise.

Kent pointed out that Griffin's letter does not refer specifically to the Jefferson district, but, rather, gives a synopsis of interpretations to date on the legality of school district payments to employees.

Following is the complete text of the 11 rulings by the state Department of Education on the legality of school district payments to employees:

• Retroactive salary increases adopted by the governing board prior to July 1, 1978, do not constitute a prohibited salary increase.

• Salary increases, not otherwise approvable, established on or after July 1, 1978, are prohibited even though negotiations for such increases may have commenced prior to that date.

• Individual salary increases pursuant to a reclassification study are not prohibited as the reclassification is not based upon comparable salary paid for similar duties in other employing units.

• Reclassification studies which result in a reclassification of a majority of employees in the district will be treated as subterfuge and will be disallowed, in the absence of other compelling circumstances. All reclassifications to achieve internal realignment and to promote in accordance with duties performed are permissable.

• Wage increases due to increase in the minimum wage are permitted.

• Individual increases in accordance with a pre-existing salary schedule are permitted.

• A general increase in extra duty pay is prohibited.

• The superintendent of a school district is governed by Section 16280.5 of the Government Code rather than 16280 and may not receive any type of salary increase.

• Other administrators of a district whose individual contracts call for increases on an annual basis may receive suth increases as longevity pay, so long as the increases are not tied to a cost of living increase.

Increases in fringe benefits may be granted, including the addition or increase in a dental plan.

The district may pay all or a portion of the employee contributions to Social Security, the Public Employees' Retirement System, or the State Teachers' Retirement System without violating the restrictions of Chapter 332 of the statutes of 1978, although the district should consult with the administrators of those programs for the legality of such payment under other law.

Welbon Answers News Stories

Many Back New CETA Funds

A long parade of speakers told the Daly City City Council Monday night that the Daly City Community Multi-Purpose and Educational Service Center Inc. is performing a needed service in finding jobs for Daly City youths and should continue to be funded.

Ernest Pezzola was one of several citizens who charged that articles printed in this and another newspaper last week had jeopardized the center's chances of receiving $166,471 in federal Comprehansive Employment and Training Acts funds for an anti-litter proposal.

Since the county has postponed the awarding of CETA funds, he said the council should continue to support the center.

But the council decided not to pay the center's rent and telephone expenses, at a cost of $85 per month, upon learning from Assistant City Manager Ray Letsinger that the organization still has $150 left over from the council's last allocation for September expenses.

Instead, the council voted unanimously to allow the center to spend that money through November and scheduled another discussion on the center's rent for city funding for the council's Nov. 27 meeting.

Councilman James Tucker pointed out that the county will have finalized the programs it intends to fund by then.

Although employees of the Multi-Purpose Center said they had received word from the county that they will be paid through March, Center Director Eddie C. Welbon said he has not received final approval for that allocation from the county Board of Supervisors.

Letsinger said approval by the supervisors probably would be a mere formality.

According to Welbon, the center's biggest problem is that the CETA funds it currently receives may be used only for salaries and not for supplies.

Other types of CETA-funded projects have allowances for office expenses.

Welbon dismissed statements made in the newspapers as "hearsay" and said the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has stepped into the case.

Specifically, Welbon said:

• The center did not find jobs for applicants who live outside Daly City.

• Youths who stole personal belongings from Mayor William Schumacher while cleaning up his yard last summer were affiliated with a different center. The mayor said he did not mean to implicate Welbon's center.

• He spent nearly $300 out of $420 donated to the center for office and traveling expenses connected with the center's business.

• All contributions were deposited in the Daly City account.

• The month-long process of remodeling the Community Service Center forced the Multi-Purpose Center to work out os Clara Haynes' home.

• Albert Teglia, who was mayor of Daly City last year, was aware that Welbon did not live in Daly City when the project was funded.

• Regarding a newspaper statement that the center had requested donations from youths seeking jobs, Welbon said, "At no time have we asked young people to donate to us."

• A previous government-funded program that he had run in San Francisco is under investigation by the Department of Labor. "I don't think San Francisco should play a role in Daly City," he said.

• That newspaper articles were timed deliberately to lessen his chances of receiving CETA funding for his $166,471 anti-litter project.

"We've been doing a positive job and I hope we can settle this issue in a good, family Christian way," Welbon remarked.

Conrad Pavellas accused the Daly City council and staff of leaking to the press contents of a closed personnel session on the firing on one Multi-Purpose Center employee.

City Attorney Albert Polonsky denied that the city had done so.

Pavellas also said the city had covered up problems with another city agency, the Community Service Center, and demanded more information on the theft of food stamps from that office last summer.

Clara Haynes, a job developer for the center, said she put in long hours at the center only to be confronted by competition from other job-finding programs.

"Where were all these people before I got out there?" she asked.

Mrs. Haynes said with anger, "Instead of thanks, I got a slap in the face."

Four youths spoke in support of the center, including a former student body president, Essie Alexander, who said, "If it hadn't been for Mrs. Haynes, I know my brothers and sisters would be in jail."

Steven Haynes, Mrs. Haynes' son, asked why no one had pointed out the positive features of the job-finding program.

In a second discussion of Welbon's request for about $1,200 from the city to pay rent and phone expenses, councilmen said they wanted to defer that decision until after the county decided whether to fund Welbon's new anti-litter proposal.

Welbon explained, "If it is approved, the city doesn't have to worry about funding us any longer." He said the litter project would pay the office expenses of the employment program.

After the council determined that the center had sufficient funds left to carry it through another month, Welbon said he had one more request: that Mrs. Haynes be given a key to the Multi-purpose Center's office at the Community Service Center.

Mayor Schumacher asked Letsinger to talk to the director of the Community Service Center about that request.

Council Votes Relieve Developers' Anxieties

Two developers sighed with relief Monday night when the Daly City City Council approved their projects after months of discussion.

The council okayed an Environmental Impact Report and a zone change and moved to adopt a tentative subdivision map that will allow Fred Damavandi of Damavandi Enterprises, Inc., to build 210 townhouse-style condominiums between Interstate 280 and Hampshire Avenue, north of Verducci Drive.

The council also approved a negative declaration and a use permit for a mixed commercial and residential building on Sullivan Avenue between Eastmoor Avenue and Pierce Street for applicant Richard Price of Le Jo, Inc.

In response to prior concerns expressed by the council, Damavandi said his project will include landscaping designed to prevent erosion problems on the hill adjacent to the condominiums. He said his company was willing to arrange a private security patrol for the homes if the council desired.

But Mayor William Schumacher said the cost of security guards might be too expensive for the homeowners association to pay. He and other council members agreed the homeowners could address the question of security at a later date.

Upon Councilman James Tucker's questioning, Damavandi said his company will not have any responsibility for the security of the property after all of the units are sold.

Tucker noted that he was unhappy that Damavandi had not provided a frontal view of the project, as he previously had requested. Damavandi assured him that landscaping will improve the view.

"It won't be a monotonous view," he said.

Tucker also wanted more information on the grade of the entryways to the project.

During the public hearing on the proposal, Ernest Pezzola said he wasn't satisfied with the access to the units provided for the fire department. The city staff explained that the fire department had approved the project.

Roseann Emerson asked the city to put more stop signs in the adjacent neighborhood and to insist on more parking inside the development.

After learning from the city staff that they will have one year to make sure final details of the project match their specifications, the council voted unanimously to approve the proposal's EIR and a zone change affecting it.

Councilman Albert Teglia was the only opposition a motion adopting a tentative subdivision map for the development.

Compared to discussions at previous meetings, the mixed commercial and residential project proposed for Sullivan Avenue by Le Jo, Inc., had smooth sailing Monday night.

Traffic Engineer Keith Dellaway came up with a means of alleviating traffic problems in the congested area. He suggested allowing vehicles exiting the project onto Sullivan Avenue to make either a right or left turn at Eastmoor Avenue — or to proceed straight ahead on Eastmoor.

The council previously had been critical of plans to route all vehicles into the right-turn-only lane on Sullivan.

Price readily agreed to two additional conditions on the project: That the driveway be 35 feet wide and that he contribute $2,000 to the cost of traffic improvements on Sullivan Avenue.

The council unanimously affirmed a negative declaration and a use permit for the proposal on those conditions and 11 others listed by the city Planning Commission.

Revelers Jam Cow Palace

Margo St. James — prostitute turned political strategist — took San Mateo County by storm Friday night.

San Francisco's queen of the bordellos, wooed more than 15,000 masked revelers to a Cow Palace rally — otherwise known as the Hookers' Ball — to champion a cause that is gaining momentum.

The whacked out and the weird rubbed elbows and other exposed parts of the anatomy with a decidedly upbeat but not too far out Peninsula "middle class" who paid $15 to $20 a pop to finance what Ms. St. James called her "feminist platform:"

- Decriminalize prostitution.
- Pass the Equal Rights Amendment.
- Finance child care centers with corporate funds.
- Legalize marijuana and use tax money collected from sales of the week to finance abortions for poor people.

"The people who are paying to come here tonight," Ms St. James announced to a gaggle of costumed reporters, "are the middle class. This is the group that we have to turn on if we are going to succeed in our cause."

Clad in a full length black knit gown and a lei of red carnations, the celebrated hooker, declared," We need also to get clients of the prostitutes to come out of the closet and to tell the world what a beneficial service we are performing.

"This (decriminalization of prostitution) is something we have to make a national issue in the 1980 election."

Ms. St. James' obviously calculated decision to move the annual hookers' event from the more liberal urban center to the suburbs was a masterful stroke.

This year's extravaganza attracted a mixed crowd — only about half of whom masqueraded. Police estimated the crowd of 12,000 to 14,000.

It was clear that many of the participants — some dressed in suits others in casual sports attire — came principally to ogle at what they hoped to be masses of unclad bodies and partake of booze and chemical and organic stimuli.

There was little of the former, plenty of the latter.

The dazzling event was indeed a orgy of festive grandeur such as Daly City's Cow Palace likely has never experienced.

The crowd, jammed to the point where walking was difficult, toured a cluster of carnival-type booths set up in the south pavilion of the palace.

The booths were dedicated mostly to political propaganda ("down with the Briggs initiative" etc.) but did offer for sale only slightly naughty sexual paraphanalia, plus face painting and fortune telling.

Couples of all kinds embraced and necked openly and as the evening wore on the ladies' rest room was invaded by the opposite sex.

The main arena of the palace was crammed all evening by revellers who turned on to the music of Elvin Bishop, Lee Michaels and Tim Hardin plus the comedy of George Carlin and the Village Idiots.

Ms. St James said she hoped to gross more than $200,000 from the ball, only a small portion of which she said would be cleared by her non-profit foundation COYOTE.

She gently criticized Cow Palace official for charging for use of the auditorium.

"The Cow Palace should be offered for free once a year for this kind of an event," she declared.

But Daly City's police chief was less than ecstatic.

"We prefer not to have it here," David Hanson said firmly at the ball. He said besides disrupting traffic and keeping neighbors awake, the ball was a drain on his police force. About 50 officers were on the scene.

Two San Francisco men were reported in stable condition at Mary's Help Hospital after being stabbed in the only major incident of trouble reported to Daly City police at the Cow Palace, according to officers.

A suspect in the stabbing was arrested, one of 20 persons taken into custody by Daly City police during the long night.

The other 19 were arrested on the grounds outside the arena for being drunk in public, police said.

The stabbing occurred in the main arena as a result of some sort of a disagreement, officers said.

fees for city documents be waived. Those charges, which range up to 50 cents per page, also were enacted as a cost-cutting measure after the passage of Proposition 13.

Assistant City Manager Ray Letsinger explained that the policy was adopted so citizens would pay what it cost the city for the documents. He suggested instead that the council charge half of that cost — postage and paper costs, but not the cost of staff time.

Resident George Kirchhubel insisted that the council was "nitpicking" by charging citizens for the papers.

Conrad Pavellas of the Original Daly City Protective Association said, "It looks like you're taking nickels and dimes from the public and then you fall all over yourselves giving back a car to the city manager who lives in Burlingame and makes $39,000 a year."

Roseann Emerson said the council should be ashamed that so few meeting agendas were being sent out.

Ernest Pezzola attacked the policy of charging for documents, as well as the shutting down of City Hall for three hours during business hours every day. "You're robbing the public," he said.

But Harold Calder said he was concerned about people who ask to be put on the city's mailing list for agendas and then never show up at a meeting again.

After discussing Tucker's motion that documents be free to those providing stamped, self-addressed envelopes and getting nowhere, the council voted to adopt a fee schedule suggested by the city staff, with the exception of fees for agendas, which will be free to the public.

Other fees include:

- Council minutes at $2 per month.
- Single-page copies from public records at 50 cents for the first page and 10 cents for each page thereafter.
- Copies of assembled, non-printed documents at 10 cents per page.

There will be no charge for copies of assembled staff reports.

Other business:

BUS SHELTERS — In addition to authorizing the acceptance of easements for bus shelters for San Mateo County Transit District buses at King Plaza Shopping Center and Mission Street at Jefferson High School, the council voted to request more information about the shelters from Samtrans.

"I don't like the idea of Samtrans coming in and putting up what they like," Teglia said.

Write-in Candidate Seeks Assessor's Post

Lewis M. White, of Hillsborough, will appear on the November general election ballot as a write-in candidate for county assessor.

White, a mathematics teacher in the Jefferson Union High School District, said the public should have a greater choice in selection of an assessor than just two candidates who are career civil servants in the assessor's office.

Roland Giannini, deputy assessor in charge of the standards division, and Tom Collins, chief appraiser of real property, are the other candidates.

"My candidacy is promoted by the fact that the present occupant of the assessor's office (Jack Estes) and the two office seekers on the ballot are a part of a bureaucracy that has dumped on homeowners and will continue to do so in the future," said White.

The 49-year-old write-in candidate promised that if elected he would roll back assessments to true 1975-76 values to match those that appeared on the 1975 tax bill.

White acknowledged that he has had no experience in appraising property, but he added, "I can provide good administration and make good policy decisions that will be for the homeowners, not against them."

A member of the Hillsborough Homeowners Association White has resided in the community fr the past eight years.

He is married and the father of three children.

Three Dead; Accused Sentenced

By DUANE SANDUL

A 6-year-old girl, left an orphan when her mother was killed in a car crash last November, still doesn't understand that her mommy is dead.

A Redwood City woman, who lost her baby at birth three days before her husband and his friend were killed in a March 1977 car crash, has had time as her ally against hurt.

This week, the men responsible for the three deaths in two separate accidents faced justice.

Robert Rodriguez, who authorities say drove while influenced by methamphetamines, Thursday was sentenced to eight months in county jail and put on three years' probation by Superior Court Judge Thomas M. Jenkins.

Rodriguez, 28, had pleaded no contest to felony involuntary manslaughter. A charge of driving while under the influence of drugs or alcohol was dismissed during plea negotiations.

Danny Gil Rael, 32, of Pacifica, who authorities said drove after having had some drinks at a bar he owned and having worked for 23 hours without sleep, was sentenced Tuesday to 90 days in county jail with a stay until after Thanksgiving.

Rael, described as a "devoted Little League and PAL coach, pleaded no contest to two counts of misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter without gross negligence.

He initially had been charged with two counts of felony vehicular manslaughter with gross negligence and drunken driving.

A profile of both defendants, and a glimpse at the aftermath for the victims' survivors, was contained in separate reports prepared for Jenkins by probation officers Tim Gatto and John O'Connor.

Rael's collision on March 12, 1977, on the Cabrillo Highway in Pacifica, killed Thomas Harvey Guin, 27, of El Granada, and his friend from Texas, Frank Assarak, 34.

Rael himself suffered severe injuries.

"While he admits responsibility for the incident, he does not really acknowledge any wrong-doing," O'Connor said of Rael. "He said he does not remember the evening of the collision, but that other people have reconstructed it for him."

Is Heat Off Dope Pushers?

By RICK SULLIVAN

Stung by the impact of the taxpayers' revolt and crushed by a resigned community attitude, the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office is quietly withdrawing its financial punch from the fight to control narcotics trafficking.

The special investigations unit of the sheriff's office, established in the heyday of pill popping, mainlining and freakouts, is shriveling to the point where some officials secretly speculate that the unit will be dissolved by this time next year.

"It's rapidly getting to the point where for all intents and purposes there is little if any narcotics law enforcement in this county," declared one frustrated sheriff's official.

Even Sheriff's Capt. Leonard Cardoza, who administers the investigative division of the multi-faceted department, acknowledged:

"The narcotics problem in this county is as serious today as it ever was. I'm obviously not satisfied with the funds that have been given us to cope with this problem."

Cardoza offered that same sentiment to Sheriff John R. McDonald last June. But the newly re-elected sheriff, faced with a post-Proposition 13 mandate to cut costs and what he viewed as a trend on the part of judges to go light on the treatment of drug offenders, opted effectively to remove narcotics enforcement from his top priority list.

Last year, the special investigations unit was allotted one lieutenant, two sergeants, 10 undercover investigators and an overtime allowance, so vital to effective undercover work, of some $75,000.

Undercover deputies concentrated primarily on narcotics control, but also investigated gambling and prostitution rackets and monitored known organized crime figures.

With the aid of state, federal and municipal police agencies, the deputies here arrested 275 narcotics traffickers dealing mostly cocaine, amphetamines, barbiturates and heroin.

Today the special unit employs only four undercover deputies under the direction of Sgt. Michael Dow. The limited crew has been forced to abandon all Six mid-county teen-age pot peddlers got a bum rap earlier this year.

At least that's the opinion of their peers whose on-and-off campus marijuana smoking and pill popping they say have been tolerated by law enforcement authorities for years.

"Come on, if the cops were serious about busting us for grass and pills they could do it every day," offered a shaggy Carlmont high school senior.

"I'd say about 75 per cent of the kids do it here — right on the campus, before classes, between classes and after classes. My God, they sell the stuff right in the senior parking lot, even in the hallways."

It was on March 22 that the bust came down. Teams of detectives raided the homes of Christopher John Dunning of San Carlos; John William Trumulak of Belmont; Joseph Anthony Monaco of San Carlos; Robert Gene Stumpf of Belmont; Sherri Lynn Thomas of San Mateo; and David Keith Martin of Foster City.

The youngsters, mostly students at the San Carlos High School, were variously charged with sale of marijuana and sale of cocaine.

Information leading to the arrests was supplied gladly by an 18-year-old fellow student turned sheriff's office informant.

The snitch, apparently more intrigued with the clandestine police undercover work than outraged over pot use on campus, came to the sheriff's office last year and asked to work as an informant.

Narcotics officers chose to wait several months until the student turned 18, when he theoretically attained adulthood, before putting him to work.

Over a period of about a month, the kid made "buys" of marijuana from his youthful colleagues primarily at an off-campus pool hall and, based on those buys, police made the arrests.

The bust was the first major break-up of a high school drug ring since 1969, when the sheriff's office made massive arrests at Woodside High. And there are no known similar investigations underway today.

"We're aware that narcotics, mostly marijuana, are being traded in every high school in and many junior high schools in the county. It's been going on for years," said Sgt. Michael Dow, supervisor of special investigations, the unit charged with narcotics enforcement.

"But there isn't a lot we can do about it, especially since recently we were reduced to four men in our unit. The only way we can make busts is by using juvenile informants and we don't like to do that.

"Our experience in the past, like at Woodside, is that student informants suffer terribly after they've testified. Harassment, intimidation. It just isn't worth it, damaging these kids."

Dow offered that the main reason his office took over the San Carlos case was because Police Chief Owen McGuigan requested aid and that the chief had been asked for assistance by the high school principal, Richard Genasi.

It is not often these days that school officials call for help from police departments to investigate drug trafficking on campus.

Most school counselors and principals say they prefer to handle narcotics control "in-house." Schools employ aides to monitor the campus grounds and they offer drug education courses and counseling for both students and parents.

Students caught with drugs are in some cases turned over to police and are liable for suspension.

But the in-house approach has worked to a large degree in discouraging any increase in drug and alcohol abuse among students, according to Emily Garfield, a drug education specialist, and a partner in the private firm of JGM Associates of Palo Alto.

"There's been a leveling off of drug use on the campuses. Over the past five years we hav seen no big increase in the number of kids using drugs and alcohol," said Mrs. Garfield, whose company has conducted studies of narcotics abuse in San Mateo County schools through most of this decade.

A JGM Associates study completed this year using sixth and seventh graders in the San Carlos and San Mateo elementary schools showed that a small relatively small percentage of pupils take drugs.

According to the study, 10 percent of the sixth graders have tried marijuana and 6 per cent have tried the harder drugs such as cocaine and hallucinogens. And 19 pecnt of seventh graders have tried grass, while 14 percent have at one time used harder drugs.

Students and counselors agree that most all the hallucinogens, heroin and other harder drugs have fled the campuses. Pot and alcohol are today's pop drugs.

"Drugs, particularly marijuana and alcohol, I'm afraid are here to stay," said Mrs. Garfield. "We are living today in a chemical society and kids are going to want to experiment; they are curious."

What is important now, according to Mrs. Garfield, is controlling the number of kids that want to use drugs and controlling the side effects of drug use and drug trade.

Most county schools have experienced no major campus disruptions relating to narcotics use.

Schools in the Sequoia Union High School District, notably San Carlos and Carlmont, are glaring exceptions.

Students, campus aides, counselors and even district administrators acknowledge begrudgingly that narcotics trade between blacks and whites on the high school campuses is directly responsible for last year's riot at Carlmont and student confrontations in years past at San Carlos.

Little wonder that San Carlos Principal Genasi, assigned last year to San Carlos to bring peace to the troubled campus, requested police investigation of drug use among students.

"School officials don't want to talk about it, but drug ripoffs have been the start of every racial problem we've had here and at San Carlos," observed Bill Lufrano, a campus aide at Carlmont.

"If we could control the drug traffic on this campus we could curtail the hassles between blacks and whites on campus," added a black community worker assigned to Carlmont.

A Carlmont junior who is bused to the Belmont high school from East Palo Alto, said drug ripoffs occur almost on a weekly basis.

He said there are as many ripoffs by whites as by blacks.

The student recollects an incident that occurred just weeks after school started.

"This white dude," he began, "walks up to two black guys and asks to buy $5 of weed. The guys says okay and hands him the grass.

"The (white) dude says he doesn't know how to roll it and one of the two others says I can do it. So the dude hands him the weed and the guy just walk off with it; simple as that; it happens all the time."

Fortunately a confrontation was somehow averted in that incident. The school has not been so lucky on other occasions.

Commented Lufrano: "Student riots never start as a racial issue; they just end up that way. One student rips off another and then the name calling starts — you nigger, you honkey — Kids start taking sides and then you've got a problem."

Drugs are treated seriously by most students. For a large percentage using is a physical as well as a social high, but, moreover, trading is big business.

THE DIET CORNER

All treat, no trick. That's the dieter's Halloween. The trick is to treat yourself so well you'll pass by the displays of junk that fill the markets during the bewitching week.

Learning how to treat yourself well is a slick trick for dieters. Have you ever stopped to think what makes you happy isn't food?

Do you like to watch sunsets? Go fishing? Take an afternoon off to see a movie? Curl up with a book in front of the fire? Walk the city streets and look in windows? Have a manicure? Buy a new something? Listen to a concert? Talk to a good friend?

What is it that really turns you on? And have you done it lately? What reason have you to postpone enjoyment? There is absolutely no time like the present for that.

Do you think you owe yourself your special treat just because you've been a good little dieter this week? A better reason would be to treat yourself just because you happen to be alive on this fall day. After all you give to those you love without a special reason. Learn to be as nice to you.

If the rest of your world is tricking and treating, don't be left out in the cold on your own doorstep. Whip up your own special Halloween goodie to have when goblins are gobbling their candies and apples.

Try this new diet candy idea:

RED LICORICE CANDY

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 packages diet cherry gelatin
4 cups diet cherry soda
2 teaspoons anise flavoring or extract

Soften gelatin in ½ cup of cherry soda. Bring remaining 3½ cups to a boil and dissolve the gelatin. Add flavoring and pour into 1-by-13-inch pan. Refrigerate. When set cut into squares.

Want some more diet sweets? Just mail a self-addressed, stamped envelope to The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116.

We all like Hillsdale. They have had a huge success in San Mateo, and all of us who live here have contributed to it.

But now it seems Hillsdale is getting a little selfish. The Bohannon Development Co., owners of the Hillsdale shopping center, are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign money to stop any shopping competition—in spite of the benefits to the people of San Mateo.

The proposed Mariner's Island shopping center meets all the requirements of the General Plan already approved for the City. It will bring San Mateo over $800,000 in new tax revenues every year, plus $300,000 for our county and school districts. It will also bring San Mateo 2,400 permanent new jobs, an annual payroll of $24 million, new stores like Bullock's, JC Penney, and Liberty House, and excellent recreational and community facilities.

Well, the folks who own Hillsdale want all this changed. They want you to vote for a change in the General Plan that would eliminate the new shopping center, eliminate competition, and eliminate all the other economic benefits to the City.

We don't think that's being fair to San Mateo.

Vote no on changing the approved General Plan.

Vote no on D.

THE ANSWER IS NO. NO on D.

San Mateo NO on D Committee, 520 S. El Camino, San Mateo, CA 94402.

Friends of D.C. Library Plan Events

Lovanne Heath

Dorothy Bryant, author of Miss Guardino, will be the guest speaker at tomorrow's meeting of the Daly City Friends of the Library, according to Mrs. Virginia Tierney.

Mrs. Bryant, who was a teacher for 20 years, now resides in Berkeley, where she and her husband operate Ata Book Publishers.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. in the Community Room of the Westlake branch of the Daly City Library.

In November, the Friends will present Louise Fletcher with her special program of Christmas tips. This is the third year Miss Fletcher has appeared at a local book review.

The Christmas program will be held Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m., at the Serramonte branch.

Special "thank you" messages have been sent by the "Friends" to eveyrone who worked to make the October book fair a success.

According to Mrs. Tierney Time Abbott, Austin Holinan, Mike Kanelopoulos, Eric Andersen, Erick Zelaya, Jim Affolter, Joe Affolter, Scott Rogers, John Murray and Scout master Craig Markinson of Troop 369; Greg Bolton, Chris Bolton, Geoffrey Austin, Charlie Martin and Joseph Riley, Jr. of Scout Troop 83; the Martins, Joanne, Donna, Jackie and Steve, of the Colma 4-H Club and teens Bryan Cohn and Ann Cooney, all worked hard and contributed greatly to the one-day sale of used books.

Friends members Robert Manbert, Cal Kincaid, Emmett Tierney, Samuel Chandler, Michael Cooney, F. Lincoln Walter, Fred Walter, Lous Filarski, Anthony Farichievich, Tom Kaplan, James Reed, Wayne Jarvis and Robert Ehright donated many hours of labor to the undertaking and Lanny Matson, Rush Manbert, Joseph Kaplan and Mike Martin supplied the trucks to transport the books. Other helpful groups were the Daly City Fire Department and the city's parks and recreation department.

SUNDAY afternoon Mrs. Olga Neville will host the annual Reunion Tea sponsored by the San Francisco Alumnae chapter of Alpha Phi Omega.

MEMBERS of the Buccaneers Booster Club will hold a cake sale at the mall of the Serramonte Shopping Center Nov. 4-5.

The boosters will share a booth with the Neighborhood Baptist church. The groups will begin selling cakes and other "goodies" at 10 a.m. Saturday and at 11 a.m. Sunday.

MRS. PAT Hansen will donate the use of her garage to the Daly City Host Lioness Club for a garage sale Nov. 4.

Lionesses who will be the Hanson home at 1210 Southgate Ave., to help with the fund-raiser, will be Mrs. Chris Matson, sale chairman; Mrs. Betty Harper, assistant chairman, and Mrs. Virginia Tierney, the publicity chairman of the club. Proceeds from the sale go to charity.

THE WESTLAKE Catholic Women's annual sodality breakfast will be held in the Our Lady of Mercy Parish Hall, Nov. 5, after the 9 a.m. Mass.

Mrs. Robert Drucker, the spiritual director, says all members are invited. She says there is no charge for the breakfast but the committee must know how many persons are planning to attend, in order to arrange the appropriate amount of food. If you are planning to attend, make reservations with Mrs. Joseph Potter.

SHAKEY'S Pizza Parlour on Junipero Serra Boulevard, Daly City, will honor the local swim team, the Daly City Dolphins Aquatic Club, by donating a portion of all proceeds to the team Nov. 9.

To enjoy a pizza and help the swim team, drop by Shakey's between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

IF YOU have paperback books and recent issues of popular magazines, Mrs. Marie Abbruzzese hopes you'll consider donating them to the Mary's Help Hospital Guild.

Mrs. Abbruzzese is the hospital librarian and the books are loaned to patients. Donations left in the Gift Shop at the hospital and marked for use in the library will be greatly appreciated.

Something New for the Districts

Community College Enrollments Take Drastic Drop

By JOHN HORGAN

Enrollments in the 10 community college districts in the Bay Area have slumped dramatically in the last year.

All 10 of them, encompassing 22 campuses spread throughout the region, have reported enrollment drops this fall.

According to preliminary figures released by the districts, there are about 16,000 fewer students attending classes now than there were last year at this time.

That represents a decline of nearly 8 percent.

The enrollment sag is something new for the districts, all of whom have experienced virtually unrelenting growth in the last two decades.

There is a concern that the great enrollment boom of the 1960s and 1970s may have finally peaked out.

In the three-school San Mateo County Community College District, early enrollment reports — taken prior to the official state census period — show student numbers down by about 1,100, or just over 3 percent.

Between 1976 and 1977, the district's enrollment held even, but showed almost no growth whatsoever.

So the trend which has become manifest now is not surprising here.

Glenn Smith, chancellor of the San Mateo district, says, "Even though we saw it coming, all of the reasons for the drop still baffle me."

He speculates that the Bay Area's surging economy has been a prime factor in limiting his district's enrollment this fall.

Dr. Thomas Fryer, superintendent of the Foothill-DeAnza Community College District, agrees. Says he, "It's a historical fact that when the economy is good, community college enrollment usually suffers. Our enrollment increases during a slack economy."

Fryer's district has this year suffered a whopping 12 percent enrollment loss, or 4,487 students.

The decline in the Fremont-Newark Community College District is even more drastic.

There, district authorities are wrestling with an 18 percent drop, or 1,809 students.

Registrar Charles Beazley says, "Because of Proposition 13, we cut back on our part-time teaching staff, limiting our evening courses significantly. We also eliminated our registration-by-mail program. That hurt us. We tried to save some money and it probably didn't work."

Fryer says Prop. 13 may be the most important reason for the current situation.

"Because of Prop. 13," he says, "we have reduced our services dramatically."

Smith says misinformation about high school adult education fees carried over to the community college level, thus putting a crimp in his programs.

Still, most administrators continue to home in on the economy as the key to the enrollment decline.

"The major reason is the labor market," says Dr. Lois Callahan, acting president of College of San Mateo.

"Jobs are easy to get and salaries are good. Our enrollment (down 336 students) reflects this."

"A lot of young people are grabbing jobs and postponing their education," says Dr. Rudy Melone, superintendent of the Gavilan Joint Community College District where enrollment is down 12 percent.

"The new philosophy of students is to get a job first, then think about school later," says Carlo Vecchiarelli, director of admissions at the South County Community College District in Hayward and Livermore. Enrollment in that district has declined by 12 percent too.

Figures for all districts could fade further when the first official fall enrollment count is made.

Students traditionally drop out of at least some of their classes during the first three weeks of work. That will be reflected in the numbers announced later on.

Additionally, if a district has an increasing percentage of evening division students at the same time its enrollment is slipping, it is likely to find its full-time equivalent count to be even lower. State reimbursement has been based on the number of full-time equivalent students a district has.

In this county, figures for all three schools — Skyline College in San Bruno, Canada College in Redwood City and CSM — indicate that evening division utilization has been on the rise, to the point where about half of the district's 31,346 students are currently enrolled at night.

Is the enrollment decline at the community college level at least partially caused by the decreasing numbers of high school graduates?

According to Mrs. Callahan, the impact of the high school enrollment drop would not be significant at a place like CSM because "most of our students are older."

She says the average age of students there is 27.

to 7 p.m., at which time he went to a bar he and his brother owned in San Francisco to do bookkeeping.

"He said it was his usual practice . . . to also socialize with the customers, help close up the bar at 2 a.m., and then do more bookkeeping. He believes he followed that procedure on the evening in question," O'Connor said.

Rael acknowledges drinking but said that he was not drunk, O'Connor added.

He noted that the defense disputed the validity of a urine test which projected Rael's blood alcohol content as from .14 to .19 at the time of the crash.

"It is my opinion that the influence of alcohol combined with fatigue at the end of a 23-hour day caused Rael to lose concentration, or perhaps fall asleep, thus drifting over the dividing lines and colliding head-on with the victims' car," O'Connor said.

The other driver, Thomas Guin, was a commercial fisherman. His wife had lost their child immediately after its birth three days before. She has since moved from El Granada to Redwood City.

"There are no words to say just how terrible I feel and will go on feeling for the rest of my life," Rael is quoted as having told O'Connor.

Rael sold his interest in the bar after the accident.

"I hope and pray nothing like this ever happens again," Rael wrote in his statement. ". . . I am thankful that I have always carried a lot of insurance which has already paid $50,000 to the deceased families . . . there is another $100,000 to $300,000 policy which should provide additional compensation to the families, though I know money is not a fair exchange."

The victim of Robert Rodriguez' crash was his passenger, 22-year-old Ruth Boyd of South San Francisco. She had been estranged from her husband.

Mrs. Boyd's mother's "primary feeling is grief over the loss of her daughter," Gatto said in his report. "She related that the victim's daughter, who is now 6 years old, doesn't believe or understand that her mother is dead. She would like to see him sent to state prison for taking her daughter's life away . . ."

A plea bargain, though, stipulated that there would be no prison for Rodriguez. Gatto recommended one year in county jail. Jenkins sentenced Rodriguez to eight months.

Rodriguez admitted that he had been drinking dur- Freeway near San Francisco International Airport last Nov. 17 at 5 a.m.

Rodriquez admitted that he had been drinking during the day while he helped people move. While taking the victim to San Bruno, he became tired and decided that "he needed something to keep him going," Gatto said.

"He stopped at some friend's house and asked for a stimulant, but claims he was not aware how much they put in his coffee. Following this, he contnued driving until he lost control . . ."

Gatto said that tests showed "50 times the therapeutic level of methamphetamines in his system . . ." (The victim also had a high level of drugs in her system.)

He added, "The defendant expressed remorse and concern over his actions, although he fails to accept complete responsibility. He views this incident as an 'accident . . .'"

Almost.

Maybe young lovers can live on moonbeams and marigolds.

But when they marry and become Young Homemakers they find they need more—things like furniture, appliances, floor coverings, linens, draperies, and, if all goes well...infantswear.

Because they need so many things, and need them right away, Young Homemakers are an important market for most retailers. According to a nationwide study by the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, the typical Young Homemaker moves about three times during the first five years of marriage. Some of these moves are from city to city and some are within the same area, but each move is usually into larger quarters and that means buying additional furnishings.

The Young Homemakers are careful shoppers, relying on the daily newspaper as a shopping tool. 66% of those interviewed had read a daily newspaper the day before. Nine out of 10 of those who used advertising as a purchase guide said the advertising in the newspaper is the "most helpful" kind—more helpful than commercials on TV or radio.

If you're a Young Homemaker with lots to buy to make a house a home, shop the pages of this newspaper before you shop the fine stores who advertise with us.

And if you're a retailer who wants to know more about reaching and informing today's Young Homemakers, call us for more details from the very interesting Bureau study.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

If a trip to Hawaii and a chance to win $25,000 sounds appealing to you, start today to create recipes featuring canned pineapple.

Then, enter them in the national Pineapple Cooking Classic which will be April 21-27, 1979 at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu. Who knows, you may be a winner.

You may enter as many recipes as you wish in any of four contest categories: Main Dishes, Breads, Salads and Desserts. Forty finalists (10 in each category) will be selected to receive an expense-paid trip for two to Hawaii to compete in the spectacular classic cook-off for $65,000 in cash prizes.

Sponsors of the contest, the Pineapple Growers Association of Hawaii, will award $10,000 to the winner of each category, with $2,500 going to the four runners-up. An additional $15,000 will be given to the finalist whose recipe is judged "best of contest," making the grand prize a rich $25,000.

Official entry blanks and complete contest rules are available by writing to: National Pineapple Cooking Classic, 747 Front St., 4th Floor, San Francisco, 94111. Deadline for entries is Dec. 1, so send for your entry blanks and start dreaming up canned pineapple recipes today.

The following recipe, a variation of the popular upside-down cake, is a typical recipe that might be entered in the classic's dessert category:

PINEAPPLE-PRALINE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

1 (15¼ ounce can) pineapple slices
1/3 cup butter or margarine
¾ cup brown sugar (packed)
¼ teaspoon maple flavoring
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 large eggs
1/3 cup syrup from pineapple
1½ cups whipping cream
Praline brittle

Drain pineapple well, saving syrup. Melt the third-cup butter in a 9-inch upside-down cake pan or skillet. Add the three-fourths cup brown sugar, one teaspoon maple flavoring and one tablespoon pineapple syrup, and mix well. Arrange pineapple slices in the mixture (overlapping them slightly, if necessary) and set aside. Resift one cup flour with ¼-cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon baking power and half-teaspoon salt. Beat the three eggs until light. Beat in the remaining half-cup sugar, continuing to beat until very light.

Fold flour mixture into egg mixture alternately with 1/3-cup syrup from pineapple. Pour into prepared pan over pineapple. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes, until cake tests done. Let stand five minutes, then invert onto serving plate. Allow pan to rest over cake a minute so syrup will drain. When cake is cool, beat cream until stiff.

With a long, thin bladed sharp knife cut cake horizontally in half, making two layers. Slip a small cookie sheet gently between the layers and lift off top. Spread bottom with whipped cream and sprinkle with crushed praline brittle. Set top in place.

Makes 8 servings.

PRALINE BRITTLE

Turn ¾ cup granulated sugar into a heavy skillet. Melt over moderate heat, stirring now and then, until sugar becomes a golden syrup. Add 1/3 cup chopped pecans. Turn out onto a cookie sheet and let stand until cold. Crush with rolling pin to make crumbs. Makes about 1 cup.

Today Is Busy at Skyline

A blood drive, fun run, drama production and important state highway hearing are among the varied activities at Skyline College today.

The Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank will be on hand from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the gymnasium to conduct a public blood drive, sponsored by the Associated Students.

Students and staff are being encouraged to "run for your lungs" at noon — a fun run sponsored by the college's respiratory therapy department.

In the evening, CalTrans will have a public hearing at 7:30 at the college. Purpose is to let the public discuss a preliminary study on possible alternate routes to Freeway 380 between Pacifica and San Bruno.

And at 8 p.m., "The School for Wives" continues its week-long run through Saturday in the college's main theater. General admission is $1.

RUNNING TO DAYLIGHT

College of San Mateo running back Steve Bradford, who carried 29 times for 221 yards and three touchdowns in College of San Mateo's 31-18 win over Chabot Friday night, scored on this play, thanks to some fine blocking.

Unbeaten Bulldogs Win Big

HAYWARD — The "Gee, coach, let me play" syndrome is alive and well at College of San Mateo, and the Bulldog football team is still unstoppable, still undefeated.

Bulldog offensive tackle Tim Mooney tore up his ankle Thursday in practice, and wasn't supposed to even make the traveling squad for Friday night's crucial with unbeaten Golden Gate Conference archrival Chabot.

But on game day, line coach Jack Thur taped the ankle; the 6-4 Serra grad ran around a little, and said, okay, I can play. That was a marvel of understatement. Mooney, tackle Hugh Loveless and the rest of the offensive line had perhaps its best effort of the season, helping set Steve Bradford loose for 221 yards in a 31-18 win.

CSM, ranked second in the state and third in the nation, is now 6-0 overall and 4-0 in the GGC. Chabot is 5-2 and 4-1.

The Bulldog line hit Chabot like a small avalanche, springing Bradford and running mate Mike LaForge (who later left the game with a bad knee) for truly impressive bursts.

Bradford had help, but he did a lot on his own, too. The sophomore transfer from Menlo College was often given five yards in the clear by superior blocking, but got a lot more on his own with great acceleration, masterful cuts and an occasional stiff-arm.

"There's no secret to Bradford's success," said offensive co-ordinator Tom Martinez. "He just breaks tackles."

CSM came out gunning. The first play from scrimmage was a 35-yard pass from Claudio Cipolla to premier wide receiver Perry Farmelee.

Bradford set up the first score With runs of 23 and 11 yards; Cipolla sneaked from the one. Two long Bradford runs and a 42-yard Cipolla-Parmelee hookup set up the next, with Bradford tallying from the nine.

Late in the second quarter reserve back Skip Campbell carried four yards for another score, and it was 19-0.

Chabot had gotten next to nothing in the ground — highly-touted rusher Eric Lane was having a frustrating night — but passed its way 80 yards in a minute and 20 seconds to make it 19-7 at the half.

In that explosive first half, CSM had dominated the line of scrimmage both ways. The Bulldogs were awesome, in rolling up 353 yards in the half. Bradford accounted for 147 of that.

Bradford was again a key figure in a third-quarter TD drive, scoring from five yards out. And although CSM's extra-point attempt woes continued (the Bulldogs have found many interesting ways to miss), it looked like CSM had the game well in hand with a 25-7 lead.

But Chabot passed its way into contention, scoring a touchdown and a 47-yard field goal to make it 25-18. And for a while Bradford was out, suffering from cramps.

"I was really nervous right then," said CSM Coach Bill Dickey. "They could score and go for two points. I could see them doing to us what we did to them last year." (Last year, in the best tradition of the rivalry, CSM rallied to win in the final seconds.)

But CSM counted one last drive, this one for 81 yards. Bradford, back in fine fettle, started it off with a 13-yard gallop, and the Cipolla-Parmelee connection kept it alive on a crucial third down play for a 33-yard gain to the Gladiator five. Bradford ran a yard for the clincher.

"Bradford was the franchise tonight," said Dickey, "but really, the whole team played well. The defense rose to the occasion. We had a little trouble with our containment, but you've got to expect that against Chabot."

Cipolla was the Bulldogs' second-leading rusher with 78 yards in 10 carries, and passed for 160 more (Parmelee's four catches were good for 140 yards).

CSM outgained Chabot 567-292. Lane, the sixth-leading rusher in the state, was held to just 65 yards on 21 carries.

CSM trails likewise unbeaten De Anza by a half game in the GGC, and hosts De Anza next Saturday in a game that could decide the title.

Dazzling Ram Show; Jeff Triumphs, Too

Westmoor High's offense, the most exciting if not the premier unit in the North Peninsula League, put on a dazzling show Friday night at Clifford Field en route to whipping host South San Francisco 38-19.

Led by the brilliant play of quarterback Tony Limatau, the Rams amassed 441 total yards compared to 222 for SSF.

However, in the midst of an array of successful scoring drives, the Rams also unleashed a few crucial fumbles which cost them a few points and nearly the game.

After exploding to a quick 17-0 lead early in the second quarer, it looked as if it would be 24-0 soon as Westmoor reached the Warriors' seven-yard line. But instead of the usual Limatau heroics, a pitch-out on the quarterback option was muffed, and South City safety Andre Adams scooped up the fumble on a one-hop bounce and scampered 89 yards downfield untouched to make the score 17-6.

In the third quarter, after a Limatau touchdown, the Warriors were able to tally on their own with a Carl Montgomery one-yard plunge. Two plays later, the Warriors were put into scoring position at the Ram 34 courtesy of another Ram fumble. This time, SSF quarterback Tom Esqueda hit Montgomery on a 33-yard pass play to make the score 24-19 — a whole new ball game.

The Rams coughed the ball up one more time, giving SSF good field position at the Westmoor 39. The Warriors got as far as the 10 before a 15-yard holding penalty and excellent defense ruined their scoring drive.

From there on, Westmoor coach Pete Matisi induced a ball control offensive. The results were two more touchdowns and a successful use of the clock.

Limatau, who along with his teammates was playing his first night game, offered no excuses. "I just simply blew most of those fumbles myself," he said. "We were just so up for the game that we stopped thinking and made a lot of mental errors. What we have to do now is just stay cool and not let up against anybody."

Despite the fumbles, Limatau enjoyed one of his best days ever as a Ram. The junior right-hander passed for 192 yards and ran for 98.

Rodgers Leads Jeff by HMB

Half Moon Bay High running back David Gibbs got his team off on the right foot Friday against host Jefferson.

Gibbs, on HMB's second possession, rambled 69 yards to give the Cougars an early 7-0 lead.

But Half Moon Bay didn't do much after that. The Cougars wound up with a net 67 yards as Jeff rebounded for a 20-7 North Peninsula League football victory.

The win moves Jefferson into a three-way second-place tie, a half game behind league-leading El Camino. Jeff is now 2-1.

Jefferson, led by fullback Rich Rodgers, rolled up 440 yards, 318 of which came on the ground. Rodgers had 16 carries for 151 yards and one touchdown.

Jeff's other TD came on a 24-yard pass from Nolan Smith to Jerry Santana. Smith completed five of seven pass attempts for 111 yards.

Placekicker Fred Proano had a good day. He made both of his PAT attempts, and also had field goals of 25 and 24 yards.

Oceana Kicks Losing Habit

Just as all good things come to an end, all bad streaks eventually run their course.

For the Oceana High football team, adversity ended Friday as the Sharks defeated Serramonte, 14-7, to notch their first win of a problem-plagued season.

"For the last three weeks, we've had nothing but negative things happen to us," Oceana coach Bill Gray said after his squad gained its first North Peninsula League win against two losses.

"We had the strike, we had some discipline problems which removed some good people from our team, and our offense hasn't been able to move the ball.

"But at the beginning of the week, we made a commitment to each other to give our best. Today we rose to the occasion when we had to on defense and that's what it took to win against Serramonte."

The Regents outgained Oceana — 270 yards to 127 — but were unable to penetrate the end zone on four different drives in which they had the ball inside the 11 yard line.

On three occasions, the rugged Shark defense — led by defensive end Mike Tyler, tackles Tom Pryor and Mike Malloy, and inside linebacker Bill Svozil — sacked Serramonte quarterbacks Don Cranshaw and Alan Banks for big losses.

Serramonte, now 1-1-1 in NPL play, moved out to an early 7-0 lead on Doug Stewart's one-yard plunge and appeared in command after stopping Oceana's first four drives without a first down. However, Oceana quarterback John Brown swung the momentum to the Sharks' side when, on a second down deep in Shark territory, he scrambled to his left and completed a 30-yard pass to running back Tony Kerlagen. Eight plays later, Earl Bradley burst off tackle for a six-yard touchdown run.

Kerlagen participated in two more clutch plays for the Sharks. The 5-4 junior snared a Brown aerial for a 61-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter, and thwarted Serramonte's last attempt to score by intercepting a Banks' pass on the goal line.

"Since the strike cancelled out preseason games, this is really our third preseason game. We're getting better each game," Gray noted. "I hope that, just as losing is contagious, that winning will become contagious for us."

Le Pacini

My team won the World Series. At least, the team I rooted for. Or, to be grammatically proper, the one for which I rooted.

Because I rooted for the Yankees, there have been some who have termed me a traitor. We are, it has been pointed out to me, a National League city. Ergo, though the Giants didn't win, I shouldn't be a sorehead. I should root for the NL, and especially since it was represented this year by a team from the Coast.

"Now," my irate father told me, "all those eastern idiots will be more convinced than ever that they're superior."

But I've always rooted for the Yankees. The only time I suspended my life-long Yankee rooting rights was in 1962, when, of course, they faced the Giants, who I loved even when they were in New York, and Johnny Mize and Sid Gordon and Willard Marshall and Bobby Thomson and Walker Cooper and even Bill Rigney were hitting all these home runs, and my all-time favorite boyhood pitcher Larry Jansen from the Seals was winning 21 as a rookie.

Why have I always rooted for the Yankees? Why, the local connections, of course, going back to Jimmy Reese and Mark Koenig, and on up through Lefty Gomez, Babe Dahlgren, Tony Lazzeri, Joe DiMaggio, Billy Martin, Gil McDougald, Bobby Brown, Jerry Coleman, et al.

But, as my father quite logically pointed out to me, when Billy Martin was cashiered this season, the last of the local connections with the Yankees went. The only leftovers from the old Golden Years are coaches Yogi Berra and Elston Howard, and they're not local.

That made me think, which in itself was a breakthrough, and I suddenly realized that it wasn't that I was rooting for the Yankees as much as I was rooting against the Dodgers. And therein lay the crux of my argument for rooting for the Yankees. I hate the Dodgers. Always. Always will.

Luckily for my mental health, it's a very rational hate. The Dodgers, you see, are natural enemies to Giants fans. It is very possible, in fact almost a certainty, that there are more nice guys on the Dodger roster than there are on the Yankee roster. There may even be more nice guys playing for the Dodgers than there are playing for the Giants. But nice has nothing to do with it. Individuals have nothing to do with it.

I am sure that there are certain kitty cats that my dog, deep in her own private thoughts, sort of takes a shine to. But, for the good of her species she tries to kill them, anyway.

Sorry, Dodgers. Sorry, National League. Sorry West Coast.

Some random World Series notes and observations:

Strange how the Dodgers were going to run the Yankees ragged, really test Thurman Munson's arm, yet the Yankees, going up against the arm of Steve Yeager — one of the best in baseball — for most of the Series, stole as many bases as the Dodgers. Five, count 'em, five.

The Dodgers had the better slugging average, .392-.393.

Reggie Jackson had the best individual SA, with a .696. Davey Lopes was second, .654.

Lopes led both teams in total run production with 14; driving in seven, scoring seven. Surprise! Roy White led the Yankees with 13; nine scored, four driven in. Next was Munson at 12 — five scored, seven RBI.

It's ironic that Bucky Dent, the Series' MVP, was charged with the only two errors made by the Yankees in the entire Series.

It wasn't generally well publicized — in fact, I can't remember hearing or reading about it in any of the pre-Series ballyhoo — but it was a meeting between the teams with the two best earned run averages in baseball. The Dodgers were at 3.12, the Yankees in with 3.18. So naturally the Dodgers' team ERA for the Series was 5.43, the Yankees' 3.74.

Looks like Don Sutton was wrong in his well-aired theory about Reggis Smith being much the more valuable player than Steve Garvey. Forget the Series Garvey had. Remember what he did during the playoffs, remember his torrid last month surge, the beginning of which coincided with Sutton's squabble with him, and bear in mind that Garvey either drove in or scored the winning run in about one-third of the Dodger victories in 1978.

That controversial earlier season rain-out against Baltimore, in which the Yankees were deprived of an apparent easy victory by an umpiring crew which pulled an awfully fast thumb on a rain squall, almost did them in, after all. At the time it seemed unimportant. But if the umpires would have waited just a few minutes longer for the rain to clear and the Yankees had gone on to win, there would have been no need for that sudden death playoff with the Red Sox.

Which all goes to prove that old baseball truism — that a win or a loss early in the season is as important as a win or a loss late in the season.

BASEBALL MISCELLANY: When Garry Maddox dropped that crucial fly ball in the playoffs, and then when Gary Thomasson was picked off second base in the second game of the World Series, an act which killed a Yankee rally and possibly cost them the game, my first reaction in each case was to say, "Well, you can't beat that basic Giants training."

No doubt about it though, the Giants were an exciting team in 1978. They played a lot of thrilling games, but it was the first time I can remember that such games were thrilling not so much because the Giants were coming from behind so much as it was because of the cliff-hanging ways they were keeping the other team from coming from behind.

You can look it up. Darrell Evans had better fielding statistics than Kenny Reitz.

Proportionately, Willie Stargell had a better slugging year than heralded teammate Dave Parker. Parker hit .334 with 30 homers and 117 RBI. Stargell hit .295, with 28 HR's, 97 RBI, but had he played as many games as Parker, he would have hit 32 home runs and driven in 120 runs — or so the figures indicate.

The Sporting News recently published a report on how the pro scouts rated individual players at their positions. The Raiders had 16 players mentioned, four of them as the best in football at their particular position. The 49ers had five players rated, none as a number one.

The Raiders rated tops at their respective positions were Dave Casper (TE), Art Shell (OT), Ray Guy (punter), and Ken Stabler (QB).

Raiders listed as fourth best were Raymond Chester (TE), Mark van Eeghen (FB) and Monte Jackson (CB).

Rated fifth for the Raiders were Gene Upshaw (OG), Dave Dalby (C), Ted Hendricks (outside LB), and Charles Phillips (SS).

Phil Villapiano (outside LB) was ranked seventh, Cliff Branch (WR) ninth.

Camino Stuns Tigers

El Camino High's football team came up with the type of performance Friday night that grid coaches fantasize a lot about — but rarely get.

The Colts were far from overpowering in their stunning 13-0 victory over host Terra Nova. But El Camino played error-free ball on offense, kept the penalties to a minimum, and played hard-hitting and opportunistic defense. It was a coach's dream.

And El Camino's coaching staff, players and fans have to be pinching themselves a bit right now to see if they're really awake. The Colts, figured by most to finish in the lower depths of the North Peninsula League race, are now in sole possession of first place.

El Camino, a team which lost several quality players because of academic reasons, has beaten the odds thus far posting a 2-0-1 record in league play. Westmoor, Jefferson and Terra Nova are currently a half game back at 2-1.

The Colts opened the contest with a textbook drive, covering 80 yards in nine well-executed plays. El Camino stayed on the ground until it reached the Tiger 35-yard line.

On second-and-10 quarterback Roger Ruzek rolled left, evaded a tackler and lofted a spiral to receiver Greg Hart, who made the catch at the 10. Hart sidestepped a defender and sped into the end zone for 6-0.

That was the first and last scoring drive that either team could muster. El Camino scored its other TD when lineman Dan Chirolo scopped up a TN fumble on the Tiger 17 and sprinted across the goal line to give the Colts a cushion.

El Camino was content to pound away at Terra Nova's defense the rest of the way — something that TN failed to do when it had the ball. The Tigers managed only 32 yards on the ground; EC had 115.

Lonnie Beckenhauer, Camino's defensive-minded coach, was not about to fritter away his team's lead with any razzle-dazzle. He stuck to the infantry game throughout the second half, while his aroused defense stopped the Pacificans cold.

The Colts had experienced turnover problems last week in a 14-14 tie with winless Half Moon Bay. But there was none of that Friday night.

"Turnovers hurt us against Half Moon Bay," commented defensive back Jeff Pettigrew, who had a standout game for the Colts. "But we corrected that and kept our penalties down too. That was a big factor.

"It's been a long time since we've played this well," Pettigrew added. "We went through a lot of preparation for this ballgame. There was no way that we were gonna let it get away from us. And we ain't finished yet."

The End of A Ten-Year Win Streak

Jackie Del Mastro, captain of Westmoor High's volleyball team, was about seven years old when South San Francisco High began its 10-plus-year volleyball win streak that earlier this week was built to an 80-0 record against league opponents.

But The Win Streak, the longest in county girl's sports history, came to an abrupt end Friday when Westmoor defeated South City on the SSF court, 15-12 and 16-14.

For once, the Rams did not let the South City mystique do them in.

"In past years every time we played South City our team would talk about how good and unbeatable they were," explained the elated Del Mastro, the only senior starter on the Ram squad.

"But this team didn't let it (the record) psyche us out. We knew they were good and knew about the record, but didn't think about it during the game because we're a better team than we've ever had at Westmoor. I knew we would win it today."

Del Mastro pounded in six spikes for points, and got hitting support from Laura Bruno and Irene Giannoulis.

Park Service to Study Bay Discovery Site

The National Park Service has agreed to conduct a feasibility study on whether to include all or part of Pacifica's historic Sweeney Ridge area in the national park system.

Word of the approval was received Thursday by Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo County, from Howard Chapman, regional director, Western Region, National Park Service.

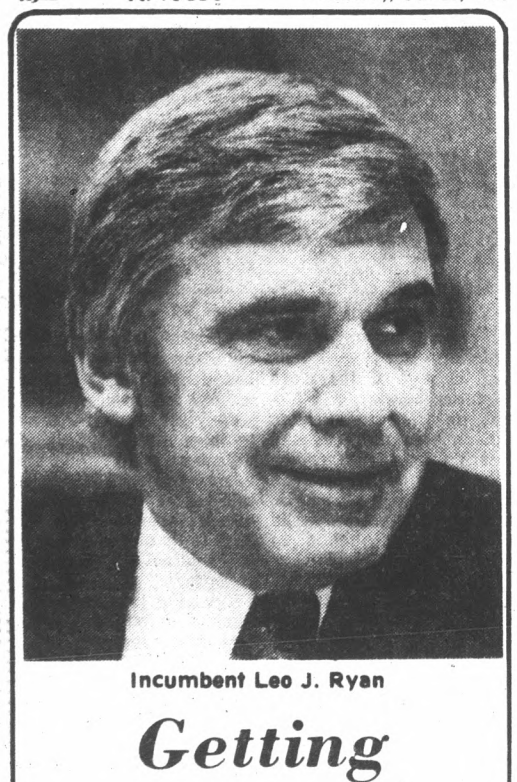
Ryan asked for the study following a unanimous decision by the Pacifica City Council favoring such a request.

The Sweeney Ridge lands consist of some 1,100 acres and may be worth as much as $6 million at current market values.

It was from a point on the ridge that Spanish explorer Gaspar de Portola and his expedition first sighted the San Francisco Bay in 1769.

Chapman's letter said that a study team from the Western Region office will schedule a "reconnaissance survey" within the next two to three months.

The study teams have been instructed by the National Park Service to contact all interested groups and individuals in the vicinity of the study area, Ryan said.



Incumbent Leo J. Ryan

Getting Campaign Paid For

By SANDRA FLEISHMAN
Post Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — With the help of special interest donations and two fundraisers, incumbent Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, had a $20,000 campaign chest going into the final weeks before the election while challenger David L. Welch dug deeper into his own pockets for loans.

The three-term incumbent picked up $18,761 between July 1 and Sept. 30, according to the latest House campaign reports. Adding that to the $15,400 he had earlier collected and subtracting expenses, Ryan had more than $20,000 left.

Welch, however, was left with $869 in cash and an $8,638 debt to himself at the close of the reporting period. The part-time college instructor and pensions consultant has loaned himself $9,738 altogether in his first attempt in politics, but has repaid $1,100.

Besides his loans, the Welch campaign committee showed $10,000 in other receipts, including $1,075 from Citizens for the Republic, Ronald Reagan's national conservative fundraising group, and $1,650 from a breakfast fundraiser starring Rep. Jack Kemp, the charismatic former football quarterback-turned-tax messiah.

Welch's $19,658 in expenditures for the year covered campaign materials, signs, a seminar held by the Citizens for the Republic for district analysis and a $457 ticket for Welch to attend the seminar.

Contributors to Ryan included Environtech Political Action Committee of Menlo Park, $900; Transport Workers Union Political Contributions Committee of New York, $500; Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors, Trustees, etc., of Mountain View, $500 and International Ladies' Garment Workers Union Campaign Committee, $400.

The Democrat also received $300 apiece from the Sunkist Political Action Committee, the California-Arizona Citrus League Fund and the Wine Institute Political Action Committee of San Francisco.

Other groups contributing between $100 and $200 over the summer were: the California Almond Growers, Chavron Committee for Political Participation, Committee on Federal Employees' Political Education, Railway Clerks Political League, United Parcel Service Political Action Committee, Professional Insurance Agents, Committee on Agriculture Policy, Century Club and the San Mateo County Committee on Political Education.

Legislation affecting postal workers and government employes originate in Ryan's Post Office and Civil Service Committee. He is also chairman of the Government Operations subcommittee on the Environment, Energy and National Resources and serves on the International Relations Committee.

Of late, Ryan has been critical of special interest donations to congressional candidates, particularly those from the National Education Association. NEA supported the federal Department of Education bill which Ryan helped block. Linking NEA contributions to pressure for education votes, Ryan said recently he has become more sympathetic to proposals for public financing of congressional races.

Ryan's latest report shows he raised $9,980 at a testimonial dinner at the San Francisco Airport Hilton and $4,721 at a Lake Berryessa picnic. Individual donors contributing $500 included: Realtor Louis Poletti of South San Francisco; Gibbs W. Brown, life insurance salesman from San Bruno; Primo Repetto, manager of Golden Gate Produce Terminal in San Francisco; Brayton Wilber Jr. of San Francisco and Douglas B. Martin Jr. of the same city.

Giving $1,000 was Mark Cohn of Davis, whose occupation was not listed.

Edward J. Daly, owner of the Oakland-based World Airways gave $200 while $100 apiece came from: Foster City planner Lee E. Ham; developer George N. Keyston Jr. of Burlingame; S.D. Chalios, business agent for the National Association of Letter Carriers; and Municipal Court Judge Edward W. Pliska.

Ryan's biggest expenses were related to the fundraisers, campaign materials and printing.

Different Views of Real Leo Ryan

By BOB HEMINGWAY

Democratic Rep. Leo J. Ryan was accused Thursday by his Republican opponent in the 11th Congressional District race of posing two facades in his role as a congressman.

"Apparently there are two Leo Ryans," Republican Dave Welch told the San Mateo Rotary Club, "the silver-haired, silver-tongued conservative — 'California Leo' — and 'Washington Leo,' whose voting record is not that good."

Ryan and Welch appeared before the Rotary luncheon to express their campaign stands on various issues, primarily taxes and inflation.

As might be expected, their proposed solutions to the nation's problems differed.

Ryan said the way to slow inflation is by cutting waste in government and by aiming for a balanced budget. The incumbent noted that he twice had voted against the Social Security tax increase.

Welch said the way to decrease inflation is through the "incentive" of a 30 percent tax cut, as proposed in the oft-defeated Kemp-Roth Bill. This, he contends, would create more investments, jobs, goods and services.

World inflation, Welch said, has "quietly pushed the American work force into higher tax brackets."

The Republican challenger said an across-the-board tax cut instituted by President John F. Kennedy in the 1960s proved successful in revitalizing the economy.

He said that with the increase in Social Security taxes, 79 percent of the people will be paying more in taxes.

Ryan, who is opposed to the Kemp-Roth Bill, commented that when the Kennedy tax cut was made the nation's inflation rate was 1.5 percent, as compared to about 7 percent today, the prime interest rate was 4.5 percent and there was a recession.

"Times are not the same," Ryan said. "It's inflation, inflation, inflation. There's no single solution to the problem."

Welch accused Ryan of supporting higher taxes, more government spending, more deficit, "despite his protestations to the contrary."

Welch said he proposed holding monthly constituent meetings on the home front and letting political opponents express their views on a page of the periodic constituent newsletter.

Ryan said the newsletter idea was "good," but expressed a preference for a "person-to-person" relationship with constituents, rather than gatherings which could lead to confrontations and intrusion of the media.

His office is always available to constituents, Ryan said. Anyone can call his office in Washington collect, and the call will be accepted, the congressman said, "although I prefer they call the local office."

Welch followed up his statement concerning the "two Leo Ryans," stating that the American Conservative Union had rated 35 of California's 43 congressman higher than Ryan.

Welch asked that voters not "compare 'California Leo' and myself, but 'Washington Leo' and myself."

"What you see and what you hear is what you get," Welch said of himself.

"So, we're back to the old rating game?" Ryan responded.

He noted that congressmen are rated by various groups ranging from the extreme left to the extreme right.

It was "startling" to him, Ryan said, that he got a 30 percent rating from the American Conservative Union, while his Republican counterpart in the 12th Congressional District, Pete McCloskey, got only a 20 percent rating.

During his six years in Congress, Ryan said, "there's no one who hasn't seen me concerned with some very tough decisions. You know where I am. You know where I stand."

Times editor and publisher J. Hart Clinton, charged that the two had not touched on the "most important" issue — how would they cut government expenses?

He said he couldn't get a man to accept a job on his ranch in the Santa Cruz Mountains because the person preferred to remain on welfare.

Trying to explain his stand, Welch elicited a long laugh from the Rotarians when he started:

"Even if Mr. Clinton was going to pay him a decent wage...."

Welch went on to state that there is no incentive, the worker would have to pay too much in taxes. He asserted that two groups, the rich and the poor, pay highest tax rates.

For his part, Ryan noted as a "best example" of cutting government expense, his blocking on the floor of the House a bill to create a Department of Education.

"It would have cost billions and not have accomplished a thing," he stated.

Ryan said he has voted in support of $157 billion in cuts in government spending during his congressional career.

New Rules Due for Travelers

Travelers returning to this country through San Francisco International Airport will soon find their passage through Customs speeded up, officials said today.

George Brokaw, director of customs for the San Francisco Bay Area, said new rules are being enacted to ease passage of returning citizens through customs check-points.

The new rules were authorized in the Customs Procedural Reform and Simplification Act signed into law by President Carter Oct. 3.

They provide for simplified import taxes, larger personal import exemptions, and other changes. The new rules apply to all ports of entry.

Commissioner of Customs Robert E. Chasen said changes include an increase in the duty-free limit from $100 to $300 for goods from foreign countries, and an increase from $200 to $600 on items bought in Guam, American Samoa or the Virgin Islands.

Beyond the $300 duty-free import limit, Chasen said, the first $600 worth of products brought in from foreign countries will be taxed a flat 10 percent.

Items brought in from the Virgin Islands, Guam, and Samoa, he said, will be subject to a flat 5 percent import tax on the first additional $600 worth after the $600 duty-free limit.

Chasen said the new customs law relaxes restrictions on importing trade-marked merchandise for personal use, and makes a number of other changes designed to speed processing of imported goods by persons or businesses.

Changes related to business imports become effective at later dates, Chasen said. New rules pertaining to individual travelers take effect Nov. 2.

One change involving a number of Peninsula residents who have relatives in the Pacific islands of Samoa and Guam, Brokaw said, is that these people are guaranteed the same import exemptions as mainland residents.

Under the new rules:

• Travelers may bring home $300 worth of article from any country, based on fair retail value in the country of purchase. Formerly, the duty-free personal exemption was $100.

• A full carton of cigarets may be brought into the U.S. by any returning traveler. The previous limit was "a quantity suitable for personal use."

• Personal import duty-free limits for people returning from American Samoa, Guam, or the Virgin Islands, has been boosted to $600 providing that not more than $300 was purchased elsewhere. Until now, the rule was that $200 worth of goods could be brought in, if not more than $100 worth was purchased from another source.

• Every 30 days, afer the first $300 worth, (or $600 worth if you are returning from Samoa, Guam or Virgin Islands) the next $600 worth of goods will be taxed at a flat rate of 10 percent (or 5 percent if from the islands). This eliminates complex calculations for varying levies on different types of goods. All articles must be for personal use, or for gifts, and not imported for sale.

• For the first time, the personal exemption may be applied to articles shipped home from foreign countries. See your customs officer before departing for details.

• Members of a family will be able to lump together all of their overseas purchases, for a total duty-free exemption. For example, a family of four would be allowed $1200 in duty-free imports, plus and additional $2400 worth of imports at the 10 percent import tax.

• Effective immediately, any person unable to claim the personal exemption because he or she has used it within the past 30 days, may bring in $25 worth of goods duty-free for personal use. The limit has previously been $10.

• Also effective immediately, the limit on value of gifts able to be sent to you duty-free, has been increased. Formerly, the limit was $10 from most foreign countries, and $20 from American Samoa, Guam, or the Virgin Islands. Now the limit is $25 and $40.

• Trademarked articles formerly forbidden for import (because of their trademark status) may be brought in for personal use if the article accompanies the returning traveler. Previously, such articles would be confiscated and destroyed.

• Penalties will be prescribed, instead of seizure of property, if a person deliberately understates the value or otherwise misrepresents the product on returning through customs. The penalty will be in addition to duty taxes. Formerly, the article could be seized and duty also would have to be paid.

A number of new rule changes have been enacted for travelers who are not citizns of the United States, Commissioner Chasen said.

Foreign travelers may bring in a carton of cigarets, no liquor, and gifts worth $25 to $40 for friends or relatives inside the United States, duty free.

A flat import tax of 10 percent of value will be required for personal goods of foreign travelers, up to a $600 total. Beyond that, the usual import taxes will apply.

Commissioner Chasen reminded that other rules relating to importing agricultural products, food, and endangered species, have not been changed.

SSF Doesn't Want State 380 Plan

State transportation officials are being told in no uncertain terms that South San Francisco does not want Westborough Boulevard to replace the extension of Interstate 380.

The City Council voted unanimously Wednesday to oppose using the residential street as an alternative traffic route between Pacifica and Highway 280.

Council members vowed to go to court if necessary to stop plans for designating Westborough Boulevard a state highway.

CalTrans (the state Department of Transportation) has issued a report on possible routes to connect Pacifica with the freeway.

At one time, it had been proposed that a $60 million freeway be built across Sweeney Ridge in Pacifica and through Crestmoor Canyon in San Bruno.

However, when state funding became tight several years ago, Caltrans abandoned that proposal and, instead, was asked to look at the cost of constructing a non-freeway type of road.

Several of the alternatives being studied involved improvement of Sharp Park Road — a dangerous, twisting road that connects Pacifica with Skyline Boulevard.

Westborough Boulevard is the most direct route to carry traffic from Sharp Park Road to Interstate 280, because the two streets intersect at Skyline Boulevard.

If Sharp Park Road is chosen as the non-freeway alternative to an extension of Interstate 380 into Pacifica, then CalTrans also may designate Westborough Boulevard as the corridor to carry traffic from Pacifica to Interstate 380.

Other possibilities for connecting traffic from Sharp Park Boulevard to the freeway are to use Skyline Boulevard and then carry traffic down Sneath Lane, San Bruno Avenue or along a new road through Crestmoor Canyon.

The South San Francisco City Council said it wanted it to be known early that the city will not agree to have Westborough Boulevard be the feeder to the freeway.

As it is now, the council said, traffic on Westborough Boulevard is dangerously congested and even more traffic is expected to be generated by the current construction of more houses and condominiums in the area.

Councilwoman Roberta Teglia said it should be noted that between $2.2 million and $6.5 million could be spent to improve Sharp Park Road, but it is recommended that no improvements be made to Westborough Bolevad.

She made a seven-point motion to oppose the possible designation of Westborough Boulevard as a non-freeway linkage.

Not only does the council oppose the designation, it stated, but it is prepared to go to court and do anything else necessary to prevent that possibility.

Councilman Terry Mirri said that South San Francisco will fight "every bit as hard" to prevent the highway designation for Westborough Boulevard as those cities that have fought to keep a new freeway from being within their limits.

The City Council agreed to cancel a scheduled study session next Wednesday to attend a public review of alternatives to a freeway into Pacifica.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at Skyline College.

Following is a summary of the alternates from Highway 1 to Skyline Boulevard.

- Improved Sharp Park Road, choosing from four plans. The upper portion needs no improvement since it already is four lanes.
- Construct a four-lane expressway along the proposed I-380 extension route from Vallemar and across Sweeney Ridge.
- Extend Fassler Avenue or extend Linda Mar Boulevard from its intersection with Oddstad Boulevard.

Yau Finishes USMC Phase

Frederick C. Yau, son of Lai-Ping and Son-Kam Yau, 140 Wilshire Ave., Daly City, has completed the second phase of Platoon Leader Class.

This six-week course is the final increment of a 12-week officer candidate program at marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va.

Is the homosexual my neighbor?

"After all," write Letha Scanzoni and Virginia Mollenkott, "Jesus made it clear that every person is our neighbor. And the Bible is likewise clear on what our responsibility is to our neighbor. Love.

"Yet we Christians need to learn a lot about love . . . the homosexual is our neighbor, but we haven't acted like it." This is the cross that Scanzoni and Mollenkott bear in their book, "Is The Homosexual My Neighbor? Another Christian View" (Harper, $6.95).

They charge that there is something wrong with a society that will sport bumper stickers with the motto "Kill a queer for Christ." The authors write that it is unbelievable that such mottos could come from a society which has so many homosexuals that they equal from 5 to 10 percent of the population, according to educated estimates. Most Americans, they charge, are like President Carter, who said that "the issue of homosexuality always makes me nervous . . . it's strange territory for me."

This leads Scanzoni and Mollenkott to their main thesis: "The hero of Christ's best-known parable was a Samaritan, the Jew's most hated enemy. 'Go thou and be like him' said Jesus."

"Who is my neighbor"

Who is my friend?

Could it be the Samaritan?

Could it be the homosexual?

Scanzoni and Mollenkott have written a strong plea for understanding the homosexual. They even suggest ways of being neighborly to homosexuals and yet, it seems that they do not recognize that homosexuals have an obligation to understand the society in which they live. Neighborliness is a two-way street. Homosexuals and all other groups must learn that society can be led but seldom can be forced. They must learn that society seldom relinquishes the thoughts and customs it has inherited. It has been taught that homosexuality is a sin, a sickness standing next to adultery as adultery stands next to murder.

All this leads to another book, "X: A Fabulous Child's Story" (Daughters, $7.50).

Here is a story of a couple who agreed to have their child raised as an "X" instead of as a boy or as a girl, as the case may be. All went well for the child. It could be a star quarterback on the football team yet enjoy pushing a doll carriage around the field. It could enjoy a doll that had yellow curls and a red skirt as well as one that said da-da and went pi-pi.

All went well for X's playmates, too. They began to learn that girls could mow lawns while boys could wash dishes. But this upset the children's parents and the toy makers and the clothing merchants. X is declared to be a menace to the community even though it is the product of a scientific study. And then a strange thing happens: The Joneses give birth to a "Y."

Such a little book as "X: A Fabulous Child's Story" has many morals and many lessons that should be heeded by lawmakers and voters.

Jigsaw Puzzles: Labors of Love

By RICHARD C. MOON

Most of us, at one time or another, have labored over a fascinating, time-consuming activity known as the jigsaw puzzle. Most of us can remember struggling to fit the final piece into place, thus completing the picture and rendering us triumphant. And some of us know of friends so addicted to jigsaws that they are forever looking for new and more difficult puzzles to complete.

These fanatics have been known to turn all the pieces of a puzzle upside down because the colors in the print give them too many hints as to the placement of pieces! The knowledge that a real jigsaw freak can go through three to four puzzles a week leads the average man on the street to shake his head in wonderment.

Today there are some 500 different jigsaws on the market. Interestingly enough, 80 percent of these puzzles are purchased by women. This does not mean, however, that men do not enjoy ondering over the half-finished puzzle since it is certain that many puzzles bought by women are intended as gifts for men or for the entire family. The age group for puzzle buyers is limited. For some reason, most are purchased by people aged 20 to 24 years with some college background.

For those who truly love the jigsaw puzzle and view it not only as a pastime but as an art form, there is one very important name — Arthur Gallagher.

Arthur Gallagher is an artist with unusual talent. Working out of a small office in North Matsapequa, N.Y., he creates the finest puzzles in the world as the sole employee of Par Picture Puzzle. For nearly 40 years Gallagher has been perfecting his art. He is now world renowned, and his puzzle creations sell for anywhere from $125 to $1,000.

Who, one may ask, is willing to pay such a price for a jigsaw puzzle? Well, apparently quite a few people. Gallagher does not reveal his clients but names such as Eisenhower, Monroe, du Pont, Auchincloss, Vanderbilt and Windsor (the Duke of), are rumored to have owned his puzzles.

What is so special about Arthur Gallagher's jigsaws? For one thing, each is totally unique. He begins witha Monet, Van Gogh or Norman Rockwell creation and forms a puzzle that will remain forever one of a kind. They are made out of wood and the boxes do not carry pictures of the completed puzzle since Gallagher asserts that no genuine "puzzle freak" wants to know what his finished work will look like until it's completed.

In his way, Arthur Gallagher is something of a genius and millions of people around the world recognize his work. For those who have a passion for puzzles, owning an original Gallagher is a possession to treasure.

BofA Drops BART Ducats

Effective today, the Bank of America no longer will carry BART tickets as part of its service. Since beginning operations back in 1972 the Bank of America along with most other banks in the Bay Area have, as a special service, sold BART "high value" tickets, and in more recent years discount tickets for senior citizens, handicapped persons and youths from five through 12 years of age.

Even though Bank of America plans to drop out of the program, most other Bay Area banks and their branches will continue the service. Over 250 branch banks will continue to carry BART tickets. These are regular BART tickets and sold in $10 and $20 denominations, and special discount tickets in $6 denominations.

INVITATION

Mrs. Robert Drucker, spiritual director of the Westlake Catholic Women, has invited all new and present members of Our Lady of Mercy parish to attend the annual Sodality enrollment breakfast Nov. 5 in the parish hall following the 9 a.m. Mass. For reservations call Mrs. Joseph Potter, 992-3262.
